Mission

The mission of USA Water Polo's Olympic Development Program is to truly nationalize our sport by unifying our system of play and dramatically increasing the number of select athletes in training at age group levels. The program will offer incentives for USAWP athletes, coaches and referees to compete for inclusion and advancement. Once accepted into the Olympic Development Program, athletes, coaches and referees will be taught the American System of Water Polo, with a strong emphasis on fundamentals, and will be in purview for positions through the National Team Pipelines for FINA competition and assignments up to and including the Olympic Games.

Purpose

The purpose of the Olympic Development Program is to serve as the primary feeder system for USA Water Polo's National Teams. The foundation of the program is a systematic approach to athlete, coach and referee development through a year round training program that focuses on long term development.

Objective

Change from a short term focus on competition to a long term emphasis on improvement through year round training that will increase the development and performance of athletes, coaches and referees.

Goal

An international coach watching an ODP Championships or training would see the teams executing the same system as the Senior National Team.

Introduction

Overseen by former three- time Olympic Coach Guy Baker, one of the most successful coaches in international water polo history, the Olympic Development Program (ODP) is the entry point for USA Water Polo (USAWP) Male and Female Youth National Teams (15/16 & under) and Junior National Teams (17/18 & under). There are 12 ODP Training Zones. Ten of the eleven USAWP Zones remain intact as ODP Training Zones; Northeast, Southeast, Midwest, Southwest, Mountain, Pacific, Central CA, Coastal CA, Southern Pacific and Pacific Southwest. The Pacific Northwest and Hawaii Zone is divided into two ODP Training Zones; Pacific Northwest and Hawaii. The Pacific Northwest and Hawaii Zone is divided for training purposes only; it competes as a Zone at the ODP Championships.

Each ODP Training Zone will conduct an initial tryout for both age groups and each gender. After the initial tryout an ODP Training Team is selected. An ODP Training Team is a minimum of 18 players and a maximum of 32 players. Zone based ODP training teams are formed for year round training under a consistent protocol developed specifically for the Olympic Development Program.

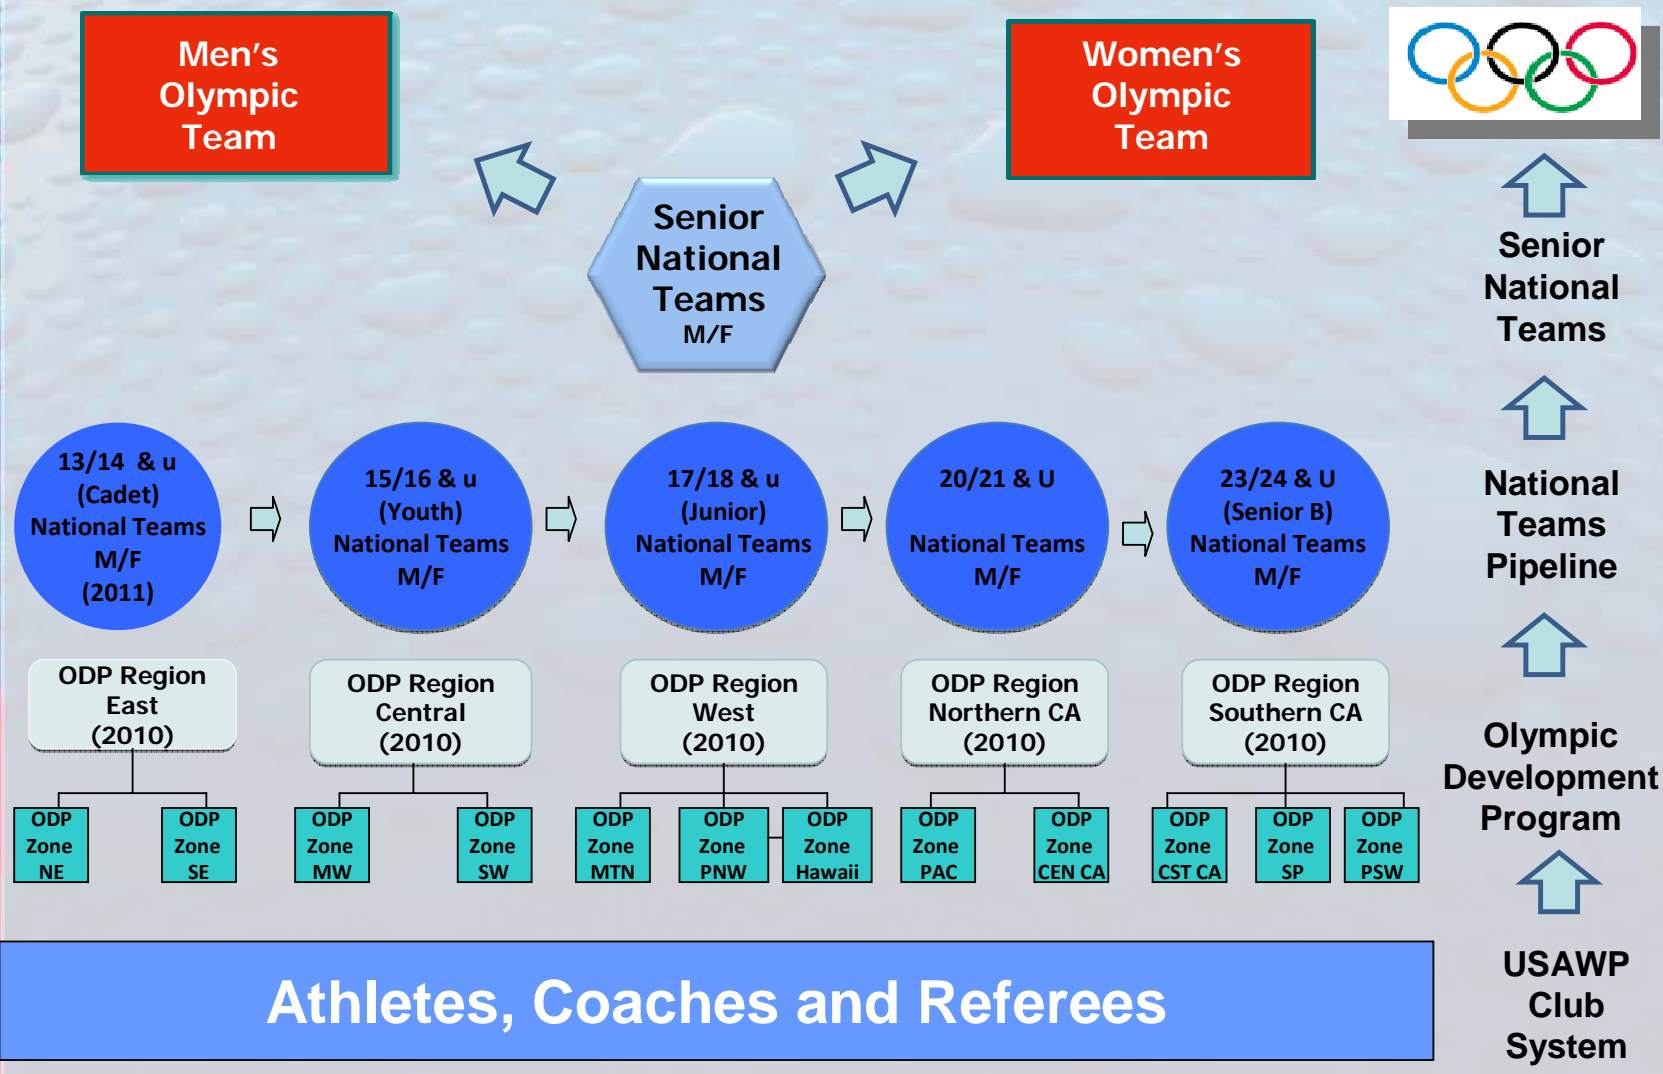

There are four ODP Championships held on Memorial Day weekend: one for each age group and gender. The ODP Championships will have four components; testing, training, competition and selection. Twelve teams will compete in each of the four ODP Championships. The eleven USAWP Zones field eleven teams for each of the four ODP Championships. A Southern California Regional Team comprised of players from the Coastal CA, Southern Pacific and Pacific Southwest Zones is the twelfth team in each of the championships. The Southern California Regional Team is a pilot program and the team is chosen following the selection of the Coastal CA, Southern Pacific and Pacific Southwest ODP Championship Teams.

A travel team of fourteen (12 field players and 2 goalkeepers) is selected for the ODP Championships. An athlete not chosen for the championship team will still be on the training team and will continue to train with the best in their respective zone. This is designed to keep athletes in the program that may not make the travel team at first but with training and development, could very well make the team at a later date. From this perspective, age group team selections represent more of a snapshot of current development because it is expected that each athlete's natural progress will vary from athlete to athlete. It will be a hallmark of the program that athletes will continue to train and compete with no secure roster spots from event to event, and rosters changing to reflect athlete development and commitment.

Athletes are evaluated quarterly to ensure that long term improvement is being met. After each ODP Championships, a National Training Team will be announced for a National Training Camp. A total of 44 players will be selected for the Youth National Team Training Camp with a minimum of two players per USAWP Zone selected for the camp. A total of 33 players will be selected for the Junior National Team Training Camp with a minimum of one player per USAWP Zone selected for the camp. The staffs of the Olympic Development Program and National Teams are responsible for scouting zone, regional and national tournaments, competition and training looking to invite players to train with their respective ODP training teams. Also, the Olympic Development Program will hold periodic ODP Training Zone tryouts to be sure that all athletes have an opportunity to participate. In addition, athletes can be nominated for the program by their USAWP Club Coach to be considered for ODP Training Teams, since club participation is a critical aspect of overall development.

USA Water Polo will cover the cost of each athlete's lodging and ground transportation at the ODP Championship. All other expenses such as flights, meals and apparel are the responsibility of each athlete.

What happens if an athlete is on the ODP training team, but they are not chosen to the ODP Championship team?

An athlete not chosen for the championship team will still be on the training team and will continue to train with the best in their respective zone. This is designed to keep athletes in the program that may not make the travel team at first but with training and development, could very well make the team at a later date. From this perspective, age group team selections represent more of a snapshot of current development because it is expected that each athlete's natural progress will vary from athlete to athlete. It will be a hallmark of the program that athletes will continue to train and compete with no secure roster spots from event to event, and rosters changing to reflect athlete development and commitment.

What happens when the ages of the Junior and Youth change after the 2009 ODP Championships?

ODP operates on a 2- year cycle following FINA age categories. The conclusion of the 2009 ODP Championships is the completion of the most recent 2- year cycle.

On the Junior level, athletes on the ODP training team will phase out after ODP Championships. They will be too old to compete in the Olympic Development program.

On the Youth level, athletes on the ODP training team will continue to Phase 2 even if they are not chosen to the ODP Championship team. They will automatically continue to Phase 2 and will not need to tryout again. They will become the Junior training team in their respective training zone after ODP Championships.

The athletes selected for the 1995 & under training teams will become the ODP Youth Training Teams for their respective training zones.

How are the Junior and Youth National teams chosen?

Youth level, 44 athletes (at least 2 per USAWP Zone) from the ODP Championships will be invited to attend a National Youth Training camp. Those 44 athletes will form the 2009 Youth National Training Team.

Junior level, 33 athletes (at least 1 per USAWP Zone) from the ODP Championships will be invited to attend a National Junior Training camp. Those 32 athletes will be the 2009 Junior National Training Team. From those 32 athletes, 13 athletes will be selected to represent the USA at the Junior World Championships in August 2009.

The staffs of the Olympic Development Program and National Teams are responsible for scouting zone, regional and national tournaments, competitions and trainings where they will be looking for players to invite to train with the respective ODP training teams. Also, the Olympic Development Program will hold periodic ODP Training Zone tryouts to ensure that all athletes have an opportunity to participate. In addition, athletes can be nominated for the program by their USA Water Polo Club Coach to be considered for an ODP training team, since club participation is a critical aspect of overall development.

If an athlete is chosen for the Youth or Junior National Team, will there be any additional fundraising commitments?

Yes. Athletes selected for the Youth or Junior National training camps will have an additional obligation through our a-thon system of fundraising. Youth and Junior athletes will be required to raise $500 and $1,000 respectively. If an athlete is also selected for the Junior World Championships team, the athlete will have an additional Golf Tournament fundraising goal.

I still have more questions about the Olympic Development Program. Who do I contact?

You can e-mail any additional questions to ODP@usawaterpolo.org.
